Memorial Award To Honor Eloise Buck

All will doubtless agree as to the appropriateness of honoring the memory of those who have made significant contributions toward the betterment of humanity. Ours is now the opportunity to honor the memory of such a person, Miss Eloise Buck, who lost her life so tragically in the Wine-coff hotel fire at Atlanta, Georgia.

It was in 1932 that Miss Buck came to our campus as an instructor in the English department. Her ability, her friendliness, and her pleasing personality in general, soon won for her the esteem of all who knew her.

A short time ago a faculty committee was appointed to decide upon some form of memorial for Miss Buck. This committee was unanimous in favoring the establishment of the Eloise Buck Memorial Award. According to the plan formulated, an annual award of $20 is to be presented to the student who during the year has shown most proficiency in English studies on the OCE campus.

All contributions, large or small, toward this award will be gratefully welcomed. Contributions may be sent through the campus mail to any one of the following-named faculty members: Miss Edna Mingus, Miss Emma Henkle, or Mrs. E. F. Barrows. It is requested that all contributions be in not later than February 15.

New Classrooms Feature Labs

With the beginning of winter term the classrooms and labs on the third floor of the administration building were opened to classes. A science library and a photography lab as well as new offices for M. R. Thompson and A. C. Stanbrough are found there.

Shortages of critical items have delayed entire completion of work on the third floor addition. Ellis A. Stebbins, business manager, believes, however, that construction will be finished within 30 days.

The Associated Builders, Inc., of Corvallis with J. E. Thompson as foreman, are doing the work.

Atomic Bomb Movie Shown at Assembly

Tuesday, January 7, technicolor motion pictures were shown of the atomic bomb experiments at Bikini. Arrangements were made for the showing of the films by Gene de Ment whose brother, Jack de Ment, took an active part in the "Able" and "Baker" day tests. Jack deMent was the youngest scientist to take part in the "Operations Crossroads."

F.B.I. MAN TO SPEAK

Howard I. Bobbitt, special agent in charge of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's Portland office, will speak on "The F.B.I. and Post-War Crime" at the assembly on Tuesday, January 14, in the Campbell hall auditorium.

Dancing Course Given this Term

Thursday, January 9, at 7 p.m. the new dancing class was officially opened. Mrs. Knox, who has formerly instructed dancing classes at the University of Oregon, Reed college, Washington State college, and has given private studio lessons, is the instructor.

The course is designed for persons who do not know how to dance and who wish to learn. One credit is given to those students who are officially registered for the course. The class size is limited to 15 women and 15 men, however the course may be audited by students who have some knowledge of how to dance. The classes are held from 7 to 9 p.m. every Thursday for students registered for credit, and from 8 to 9 p.m. for auditing students. Only those who are officially signed up, either for credit or audition, are permitted.

Students who are able to dance reasonably well are urged not to sign up for credit because it may deprive someone who cannot dance of a chance to learn.

New Course Offers Four Credit Hours

Elementary algebra is being offered again this term to provide a better background in mathematics for those students who plan to take elementary analysis I.

The course has been opened since registration. It will be taught by A. C. Stanbrough, assistant professor of mathematics, on the fourth period on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Four credit hours will be given for the course.

Veteran Division Added in Portland

A new division has been set up in the Veterans' Administration in Portland to take care of problems that arise concerning veterans going to school under the G.I. Bill. They are urged to write directly to the Portland office if any difficulties connected with subsistence payments, increased allotments for dependents, etc. The address is 1019 S.W. 10th Avenue, Portland 5, Oregon.

WEINZIRL TO VISIT CAMPUS

Dr. Adolphe Weinzirl of the Oregon Medical School, Portland, will discuss a social hygiene plan for this school at a meeting of the faculty club on January 16.

NOTICE!

All new students on the OCE campus are asked to watch the bulletin board in Campbell hall for announcements which will soon be made regarding physical examination procedures at the health service.

Term Activities Now Scheduled

Here we are back at school again and from a look at the social calendar, this term will be an interesting and busy one. There will be a number of basketball games and the rec. hall will continue to be open for dancing on Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday nights.

Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship is giving a student body party on Wednesday, January 15. The freshman class and CCYM are also giving parties, the dates of which are to be set later.

The Crimson O players will present a three-act play, "The Royal Family," on January 31.

On February 3 the Campbell hall auditorium will be the scene of a marionette show.

Two formal dances are also being planned. February 8 is the date set for the "Sweetheart Ball" given by Collecto Coeds and Jessica Todd hall is having a dinner dance on February 5.

The beginning of a new term also sees a number of initiations and initiation banquets being carried on by many of the organizations on the campus.

The last scheduled date is March 9, when the girls of Jessica Todd hall are giving an informal spring tea.

Lamron Minus Editor

Jeanne Erickson, last term's Lamron editor, is now teaching in the Fern Wood grade school near Molalla. She plans to come back to college next summer session to finish the credits required for her degree. The Lamron is now in charge of an acting editor, Bernice Elston, who will continue to act until a new editor is chosen by the student council.

Many Students Attain Fall Term Honor Roll

Forensics Class Slates Contest

The new forensics class got underway this week with a nucleus of four original members who were working on debate last term and with the addition of three new members. The four original members are Bruce Nelson, Helen Davis, Ford Forster and Wendell Waldon. The three new members are Ray Huff, Jean Stangel and John Klapp.

It is necessary for the group to start from the beginning as this type of extra-curricular activity is a new feature on this campus. All of the members of the group have had previous experience in debate or public speaking in high school or other experience.

The group is attempting to schedule some practice debates with other schools in preparation for the 17th International Inter-collegiate Forensics tournament which is scheduled to be held at Linfield college in McMinnville on February 27 and 28 and March 1. This contest includes colleges from seven western states and we hope to have two debate teams as well as entries in extemporaneous, impromptu, and oratorical contests. The topic for debate this year is Resolved: That Labor Should Be Given a Direct Share in the Management of Industry.

Photo Club To Meet; Charter To Be Drawn

A photo club has been organized and will meet within the next week to draw up a charter and to arrange for the placing of responsibility for the fine equipment the school has. Matthew R. Thompson who is group adviser, tells us that about a dozen students have signed up so far. A darkroom has been built in the third floor of the administration building and the enlarger and film development equipment will be housed in it. Our hats are off to Mr. Thompson for his spirit of progressive organization.

MATTESON NAMED VICE-PRES.

Monday evening the associated women students held their regular monthly meeting. The main purpose of the meeting was to select a new vice-president and Jeanne Matteson was unanimously elected to this position. After the business session Miss Ruth Denney, director of the student health service, gave an interesting talk on "Social Hygiene."

NOTICE!

Applications for the position of Lamron editor and of Grove editor and business manager are being accepted by the student council. These offices are vacant and applications must be in before the next student council meeting this evening, Monday, January 13.

Bruce Edward Nelson of Woodburn received A's in all courses taken last term to win top honors for scholarship at OCE for the fall term. The following other students won places on the first honor roll for the fall term by earning grade-point averages of 3.5 or better while carrying a minimum of 15 term hours:

Ruth Eileen Anderson, Forest Grove; Vernon William Coe, Eugene; Frances Martha DeVos, Monmouth; Betsey Ann Dreier, St. Helens; June Elaine Felder, Waldport; Charles Elmer Funk, Hood River; Ralph William Gibbs, Goshen; Marleau Smith Harris, Monmouth; John Morton Howard, Monmouth; Myrtle Fern Huntzinger, St. Helens; Frederick Lowell Hutchens, Independence.

Melvin Clark Irving, Independence; Rosemary Frances Isom, Brownsville; Judith Hill Morris, Front Royal, Virginia; Eugene Karl Morton, Los Angeles, California; Ruth Leona Porterfield, Portland; Helen Oral Price, Dallas; Elizabeth Everline Rose, Monmouth; Elbert Earl Shreve, Salem; Verna Marian Smith, Portland; Marion Esther Wiest, Monmouth; Mildred Louise Wilson, Scotts Mills.

The following students won second honor roll places for the fall term by earning grade-point averages of 3.0 or better while carrying at least 15 term hours:

Coeds Reveal Ball Highlights

With "Sweetheart Ball" time only a month away now Collectos are scheduled for a very busy January. Final details of the occasion are now taking shape with committees chosen and work begun. The event will be a formal date affair on Saturday evening, February 8, in the physical education building.

The "Ball" is highlighted with the presentation of a silver cup to the campus boy who has been chosen by Collecto Coed members as their "sweetheart." Previous Collecto awards, based on personality, cooperation, and popularity, have gone to the following: Al Neet, 1941, who was on the campus this past fall term completing his degree work; "Red" Kernes, 1942, now teaching at the coast; Archie Dunsmoor, 1943, teaching and coaching at Redmond this year; Carl "Mac" McMahan, 1944, one of our indispensable OCE janitors; and Allan Petersdorf, 1946, still a member of the OCE campus family.

Collectos are going to miss Edna Pike this term, but wish her best of luck in her new teaching position at Amity.

CO-OPERATION—KEYNOTE OF LIVING

The month of January is nearly half over. How many of us remember those resolutions we made to make 1947 a better year? When we made our resolutions, did we include some of those necessities which promote a better school spirit?

Co-operation is the one basic element for a cheerful relationship among college students. It is needed in every activity that takes place on the campus. It has been discovered in many of our organizations that individuals enter the club with no thought in mind except, "Now I belong to a well-known organization." They don't stop to consider the fact that it is each person's duty to work diligently with the leaders, in order to make it a good organization.

Members of the student body also have the responsibility of co-operation and appreciation. Every activity that takes place, no matter how small or insignificant, requires much hard work by a few individuals.

So many students on the campus think in terms of "what will I get out of it?" instead of "I will put into it all that I can," when joining a club or helping out an organization. They go along from day to day in a selfish haze, not thinking of the other person's welfare.

A good slogan for OCE students would be, "Co-operation is the keynote of living." Now is the best time of all to put this into practice, for nowhere else will you find this opportunity for good, co-operative living.

BOOKSLIP

"Report on the Russians," by W. L. White, the well known journalist and author, is an interesting—as well as entertaining—account of a six-week visit in wartime Russia.

Mr. White accompanied Eric Johnston and his assistant when they were invited to Russia during the summer of 1944. Although the three men were not allowed absolute freedom to go where they wished, they visited many places and saw many things which had been restricted to Americans before this time. A trip to the front did not consist of a view of machines and troops, but only of a visit to a former battlefield with its trenches.

Each visit to a factory, farm, or theater is told about in detail. With every story the author mentions the elaborate service of food, consisting of caviar, wine, vodka, and other Russian delicacies.

All through the book Mr. White explains the Russian people—in their poverty, in their work, in their beliefs—as he sees them, not expecting the reader to form an opinion of their politics or religion, but expecting him to know and to understand the Russians more thoroughly than he did before reading the book.

This book, first published in January, 1946, is recommended to everyone, but should be of special interest to those people who fear Russia as an enemy of our country.—M. Wiest.

Song of the Orient

Tonight the lonely tree,
So near the tumbling sea,
Is nodding to the moon's
Gold spears that race and flee.

An echo of the past
This night brings from the vast
And dark eternity
To soothe my dreams at last.

And there against the blue
Dark Depths of night there flew,
Between the sky and sea,
A memory of you.

Now, with the velvet night
And silken dreams more bright
Than all the moons above,
I have complete delight.
—Joyce Tverberg

Alumni News

Now that the Christmas vacation is behind us, I am sure that some of you heard about at least one of our alumni members and I would appreciate it very much if you would tell me what you know about them.—Wendell Waldon, alumni editor.

Myrtle Mueller, who received her degree on the campus last year is now married to Walter Lee Powers and lives in Waco, Texas.

Helen Stanbrough, 1929, and a daughter of A. C. Stanbrough, our mathematics and science instructor, is teaching art in the Parrish junior high school in Salem.

John Scott, 1933, has accepted the principalship of the Warren school beginning with this winter term.

Marie Wiest, 1939, is now Mrs. James Daniels and she and her husband are living in Denver, Colorado, where both of them are attending the University of Colorado. Mrs. Daniels is studying business administration and her husband is studying law.

Cyrus Williamson, 1940, who has been principal at Cresswell, in Lane county for the past four years, has now taken up his duties this year at Malin, in Klamath county, where he is principal.

Ted Jaross, 1941, is teaching at Lebanon this fall.

Roland Hall, 1938, is now teaching in the Corvallis junior high school, as well as the senior high school. He is teaching band, orchestra, and chorus in both of these schools.

Warren T. Elliott, 1937, is living in Vancouver, Washington, where he is assistant plant manager for the Standard Oil Company of California. Mrs. Elliott (Vivian Reynolds, 1937), is kept busy at home, as they now have two girls to help make life more enjoyable.

Newport junior high school is well represented by OCE grads. Carvin Martin, a senior student here at present, is taking a leave of absence as principal of the school. He lists the following, some of whom have been alumni of this school for many years: Esther Copeland (Anderson), 1912; Madge Rogers, 1914; Agnes Mehring (Davis), 1923; Edna Joy (Griswold), 1927; Berylle Blosser (Mercier), 1927; Estelle Hart (Kean), 1927; Myrtle Willis, 1927; Eugenia Shanks, 1928; Pearl Turnidge (Williams), 1929; Luva Cleland, 1930; Vernon Mercier, 1937; Juliet Rigolett (McClaren), 1930; and Margaret Asche, 1939.

Robert Houck, 1935, is now vice-principal of the Parkrose high and junior high school in Multnomah county.

Anthol Riney, 1940, and wife, Bessie Christensen, 1939, have a new member in their family, a boy, Chris Wayne, who was born November 22. Anthol is enrolled at Oregon State college where he is majoring in agriculture.

Richard D. Gwillim, who received his degree in 1946, is teaching the eighth grade in a school at Gresham. Geraldine Williams, 1941, is now Mrs. Gwillim.

John Cannon, 1940, was a recent caller on the campus. John is enrolled at the University of Oregon and plans to have his degree this coming June.

Rambling Remarks

HAPPY NEW YEAR!
For many of us the new year came in with a bang! Our New Year's resolutions are still fresh and we are yet following them. That is a very fine record—now to keep those resolutions until this year is an old one.

WELCOME!

Welcome to OCE, all you new students. We hope that you will enjoy your school life here. You are cordially invited to attend the various social activities on the campus.

RATTY?

Woman (telephoning to desk clerk): "There's a rat in my room!"
Hotel Clerk: "Make him come down and register."

ICY SIDEWALKS

Safety First, might well have been our motto last week. It isn't much fun to walk (?) on a slippery sidewalk. Sliding is a lot of fun, however! Just ask some of the people who did—accidentally!

SOMETHING NEW

The third floor of the administration building is now being used for classes. More classroom space makes for better learning—it says here!

DUSTY

Saw dust is the past tense of see dust.

ATOM BOMB

Speaking of pictures! We have Gene DeMent to thank for some very excellent pictures of the atom bomb. The movie was not only entertaining, but educational as well.

ART IN EVERYDAY LIFE

How many of us stop to notice the art work in the showcase of Campbell hall? The work is done by art students in Mrs. Heath's classes. We can see that she has some very talented students.

ANALYSIS

(The men may class themselves accordingly.) If a fellow tries to kiss a girl and gets away with it, he's a man; if he tries and doesn't get away with it, he's a brute; if he doesn't try but would get away with it if he tried, he's a coward; if he doesn't try and wouldn't get away with it if he tried, he's wise!

G. P. A.

Your last term's grades will be an influence on the work you do this term. May we all schedule our work according to the need.

WEDDING BELLS

Weddings and engagements are again the very latest style. Our very latest engagement is that of Ethel Pamperin to Hal Lohbeck. The very best to you both.

DANCING

COYM is certainly in the swing of things. For that extra something, the active religious club had a folk dancing practice last Wednesday night. With Miss Lautenbach on hand to furnish the instruction, music, and good guidance, the evening was an enjoyable one. January 31 is the date set for the big barn dance which will feature folk dancing. We'll see you all there then.

MORE DANCING

Just to prove that everybody wants to get into the act, a social dancing class has been organized. If there is anyone in the college who can not dance at the end of this term, we gather that it will be his own fault.

WARNING!
The space is getting short, but before signing off, may we remind you not to study so hard this week.

I drink to your health when we're together,
I drink to your health when alone,
I drink to your health so often,
I've darn near ruined my own.

A girl is like the ocean. She may look green, but she can get awfully rough.

He who talketh by the yard but thinketh by the inch deserveth to be kicketh by the foot!

WANTED: A private detective to track down Mr. Sign Mutilator. He is known by several other names, such as "Kilroy" and "Smoe." Whoever he may be, he is neither very intelligent or very humorous. His main purpose at present is to find "How far is up?" One of his last jobs was pilfering the IRC question box. It appears, too, that carving up school property is another of his activities.

REWARD: Words of appreciation from club officers and others.

West House News Items

At our first house meeting of the year Harold Gierloff, house president, had each new man introduce himself. We have nine new men at West house, including Earl "Curly" Matteson of Woodburn, who moved into West house from Arnold Arms. The other new men are: George McCormick, Albany; Clarence Rooser, Holly; Elmer Giroux, Silverton; Lloyd Hodson, Junction City; Paul Dille, Dallas; Don Thompson, Corvallis; and Jim Kenny and Herb Schunk, both from Heppner.

Art Chapman formerly of West house was married to Delores Schild December 21 in Tillamook. The couple is living in Vets' Village. Art is continuing his college course.

Bud Lee of West house married Lois Kincheloe December 28 at the First Methodist church in Hillsboro. Bud is still living at West house and his wife is teaching at Nehalem.

Three fellows from West house met the scholastic requirements last term and will soon be initiated into Theta Delta Phi, national honorary fraternity for men. They are Bud Neal, Karl Morton, and Bruce Nelson.

Roland Hall, music instructor at Corvallis junior high school, visited West house last Thursday evening, January 9. Mr. Hall entertained us by playing the piano, which was certainly enjoyed by all. He was a graduate of OCE in 1938 and plans to attend school here again next summer.

MOLES GO TO FALLS CITY
Ray Smith's Moles travel to Falls City Wednesday night to play the high school there. Coach Smith has named the following men on the traveling squad: Perry Jones, Marleau Harris, Bruce Hamilton, Charles Bullock, Gale Davis, Ward Stanley, Mel Courter and the coach, himself.

Int'l. Relations Plan Meetings

At a meeting held Thursday, January 9, International Relations club planned a program for the regular meetings to be held this term. A question box was placed on the bulletin board for and questions you have on international affairs that you would like to hear discussed. It was suggested that club members be appointed to lead various discussions arising from the questions received. Another idea was to ask several of the faculty to form a panel to give their opinions on questions asked. Watch the bulletin board for time and date for the discussion of your questions.

Plans are being made to have an outside speaker for an assembly in the near future.

Capitalism vs. Communism was the subject of an impromptu discussion led by Elmer Spencer. Who will volunteer to lead a similar discussion on a topic of your choice? Write your name and topic on a slip of paper and put it in the question box.

New members and visitors are welcome at IRC meetings.

S & K Plans "Rush" Tea

The first meeting of this term for Staff and Key was held Tuesday evening. At this meeting plans were discussed for the rush tea to be given for the girls being considered as Staff and Key pledges. As yet no definite plans have been considered for the activities of the term.

For the new students who do not know about the club, Staff and Key is a service organization on the campus and is made up of selected girls who have grade-point averages of 2.5 or better. Pledges are chosen each term, but new girls are not eligible until they have been on the campus one term.

Officers Elected At WAA Meet

At a meeting in Jessica Todd hall living room Tuesday night, WAA filled the offices vacated by Willie Knapp and Frances DeVos, the former graduating, and the latter transferring to the U. of O.

Ex-WAC Viola Robins was elected treasurer and Bev. Wadsworth took the duties of reporter.

Announcement concerning two new sports, basketball and folk dancing, were made and the practices are scheduled to start immediately.

THE VOGUE

"Little Ragamuffin of Puerto Rico"

(By Eugene Collins)

TO LITTLE JUAN PEREZ:

If it hadn't been for little Juan and his likeable impish little face, I would probably never have decided to become a teacher.

I had finished my tour of active duty, and after spending several months in hospital and refresher courses in the States, I found myself on the way to Puerto Rico, supposedly the "Land of Enchantment."

The trip on the transport was as perfect as any transport trip could be. The ocean was so smooth that the feather-like clouds reflected in it. Majestic Portuguese-Men-of-War, proud little galleons of the jellyfish family, sailed cautiously by.

We landed at San Juan one morning about 10:30 and were moved immediately to a staging area. While waiting outside the mess hall, I saw Juan for the first time. He was standing alongside the garbage cans by the mess hall door, a dirty, ill-clothed urchin, with a frightened look on his face.

The native mess attendants came out the door carrying a large container of kitchen scraps and garbage, which they dumped in the garbage cans. Little Juan reached his full length into the can and started fishing out edible bits from the can. When he had filled both little hands to their capacity, he slumped eagerly to the ground and began to eat ravenously of what he had selected.

I had not been alone in observing what had taken place. Hearing a slight moan beside me, I looked around and saw Eddie, my buddy, had been watching too. Without saying a word, we both got up and started for the mess hall.

By bribing one of the mess attendants, we obtained two large sandwiches which we carried out to Juan. As we approached him, he got to his feet as though to run away. Eddie spoke to him softly in Spanish and he stopped and looked suspiciously at us. After more Spanish his unsated appetite got the better of his fear and he came close enough to snatch the food and then run as fast as his spindly little legs would carry him around the corner.

We thought that we had seen the last of him, but a few minutes later he came edging back around the corner. This time when we called him he came, with some reluctance, and squatted beside us on the ground. Now, when handed a bar of chocolate, he thanked us politely in his native tongue and for awhile, between big bites of candy, answered questions.

It was the same depressive story we had heard so often in the Pacific. His mother and father had been drowned when the last hurricane had hit the island. Since then he had been begging, stealing, or obtaining food in any way that he could.

When we were called to formation a moment later, to march to the barracks, Juan tagged along behind. Evidently it wasn't going to be easy to separate him from his new found friends.

When we were assigned our bunks, there was Juan sitting happily on the foot of one of them. For the next two or three days we carried as much food out of the mess hall as we ate; we bought cookies, candy, or anything the PX offered. Never did we find the limit of his eating ability.

Soon the whole barracks was playing with him. He would tumble around like a contented little puppy until finally one of us would find him curled up on a bunk sound asleep. Then we would carry him out to the bunk that we had hidden in a bamboo thicket, and tuck him in.

In return for our kindness, he insisted on sweeping the barracks, shining our shoes, or doing any job that he could accomplish, and a lot that he couldn't.

Our Spanish was better than the average and Juan was responsible. He too was learning. He could speak a few words of English, "Norte Americano," as he proudly called it.

Before a year was up, he had grown immensely, both physically and mentally, and his English, even though comical, was better than most of his countrymen.

Although he objected to being away from the company, we obtained a job for him as interpreter in one of the restaurants in San Juan. He would visit once a week on his day off, still clothed in the sun-tan uniform that had been cut down to fit him. He still saluted our officers and they would return the salute, just as seriously. Unofficially they had known all the time what had been going on, but, knowing that the company morale was higher than the rest, had guessed why and had overlooked the infringement on regulations.

It was only natural that we were happy when our sailing orders came, but there was one black cloud on the otherwise beautiful horizon. Who was going to tell Juan? We drew straws, and I was the unlucky man.

The next day was Juan's day off. I met him as he came into the company area, so that I could talk to him before he saw the packing activity. I think he must have known what was coming, because as we walked, he was abnormally quiet. Finally I mustered enough courage to blurt it out. He stood quietly for a moment, looking at me, and then in words and mien far beyond his eight years, he started comforting me.

Juan was comforting me—and it was my job to comfort him! "Don't be unhappy, my friend. You and my other friends will be much happier in your own homes."

"And what will you do, Juan?" I asked, very much surprised at the turn of events.

"Do not worry about me. Next week I am going to school to learn much about your language and some day I will come to the 'Estados Unidos' and see all of my friends and the wonderful things they tell me about," he replied.

We started back to the barracks and when we arrived the whole company immediately gathered around. Juan started to speak, and there wasn't a sound. His big brown eyes were damp and he was having a hard time. But none of those fellows will ever forget that stumbling little speech—half Spanish and half English.

"Thank you, my friends, for helping me when I needed help, and teaching me all the things you have. I will see you all some day"

There his voice broke and he squirmed his way out of the restraining hands and ran.

Yes, Juan was at the dock next day with his arms loaded with a large piece of "pasta la quaya" for each of us. He left the dock with his arms loaded with all the things we knew he had coveted so long. Jim's sheath knife, Joe's sun helmet and my wrist watch—but I needed a new one anyway. And Juan's eyes were not the only ones that were damp as we pulled away from the dock.

I decided then that if one little Puerto Rican boy could be as grateful as he for what meager knowledge we had given him, then teaching must be a wonderful profession.

Gym to be Scene Of Merry Mixer

The gym will be filled with fun and frolic Wednesday, January 15, at 7:30 p.m.

What is it? An all-campus merry-mixer sponsored by Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship.

A good time is promised for everyone who attends the party. Oh, yes, food is on the program too!

ULTIMATUM

Back to school
Again I go
To learn a rule,
Be in the know.
Holidays done.
New Year's begun.
Resolutions made,
To get that grade.
Hard at work,
No parties or fun.
Cannot shirk
My studies undone.
Next day
In hall
Meet girl,
Forget all.
Make date.
Stay out late.
No time to study.
Copy from buddy.
Oh, well,
My social life
I can't interfere,
Even for old
Alma Mater dear.
—Joyce Tverberg

Play Scheduled By Crimson O

The campus dramatics club is really a busy group at the present time and will be actively engaged until after January 31, when "The Royal Family," a three act comedy will be presented.

Members of the cast are practicing nightly in order to get the play to a standard of perfection. Mr. Harding has selected a few students outside of the organization for certain parts for which they have proven their talent.

The club members not actively taking part in the play are engaged in other phases of the presentation. The elaborate stage settings necessary is under the supervision of Elmer Spencer who is stage manager for the play. Other committees for costumes, properties, and make-up are also busy.

We are sure that all of you will enjoy this play, which will thrill you as well as tickle your funny-bone from the beginning to the surprising finish.

CCYM Practices Folk Dancing

An enjoyable evening of folk dancing was the featured event of the CCYM meeting last Wednesday night. Miss Ruth Lautenbach was present to furnish the music and instructions. Under her guidance, we can assure you that nearly everyone learned to do something he didn't know before. There may even have been some experts in the crowd! The square dancing was a practice in preparation for the barn dance which has been set for the evening of January 31. If you are looking for something to do, there is not a better way to do it. CCYM will be looking forward to seeing everyone at the old barn dance on January 31.

Tea Sponsored At Todd Hall

The associated women students sponsored a lovely tea on Monday, January 6, from 4 to 5 p.m. in the living room of Jessica Todd hall. The tea was for the purpose of getting acquainted with the new students at the Oregon College of Education.

Dona Canutt, A.W.S. president, introduced all the new students while two very able hostesses, Rosemary Isom and Louise Kinney, poured.

The Real Thing

by W. B. Stanley, Sports Editor

The second half is the decisive stage of any athletic contest. A team that plays ragged the first half, but comes back in the closing minutes to win by a small margin should be admired. The St. Martin's five outplayed and outscored the Monmouth collegians in the first half. The Wolves couldn't work a play successfully in that first ball nightmare. OCE left the floor at the intermission behind by seven points. After the second half was underway a few minutes, the Wolves turned on the steam and it was evident that St. Martin's faced an entirely different team than they saw the first half. The local team deserves a bouquet for pulling that game out of the fire.

† † † †

OCE will have met Southern Oregon twice at Ashland by the time this column is in print. The team supporters should know that SOCE is probably the strongest opponent on this schedule. The Red Raiders are undefeated from the last report we received. Among their many victims are Linfield and Eastern Oregon College. The Wolves are classed as definite under-dogs when they meet the Ashland speedsters. However, anything can happen!

† † † †

Tonight (Monday) OCE will line up against Humboldt State in Arcata, California. After two fast contests in Ashland Friday and Saturday, the local lads will undoubtedly be a bit weary when they meet Humboldt. We feel that the Californians will see a hard-fighting aggregation from Monmouth.

Wolves Defeated By Lewis & Clark

Led by Pollard and McCluskey, the Lewis and Clark Pioneers ran roughshod over the Wolves 63-35 in Portland during the Christmas holidays.

Pollard canned 18 tallies and McCluskey scored 15, but Bob Abrahamson, OCE center, was high point man with 21 counters. Summary:

Local Quintet Edges Victory

St. Martin's college met a surprising "hot" Wolf five here when OCE came from behind to win 48-44. Bob Crook poured in five field goals the last half.

Behind 16-23 at the intermission, the local quintet fought back and went ahead 42-41 with five minutes left to play. Hamer and Matteson hit from the floor, while Neal and Crook contributed one free throw each.

Crook's 15 points was the best offensive show for the evening. Abrahamson, OCE center, and Hausmann, St. Martin's forward, totaled 13 points. Summary:
